(ICCAC)*

The Industrial-Commercial Certification & Accreditation Center (ICCAC) is a private 3rd party certification, validation and accreditation body that provides conformity assessment in the fields of management systems, products, processes, services, personnel, professional skills, non-academic assessment, validation and verification and other similar requirements of conformity assessment.

Our primary function is to assess and certify claims and conduct due diligence which reduces risk for businesses and their customers by assuring them that accredited certificates, validation and verification we provide are in tandem to their provision. We validate, certify and assess just anything that our clients require.

Our biggest services is to certify and validate up-skills human resources that are due for certification from practitioner, non-academic Associate Diploma, Bachelors, Masters, DBA and PhD degree that is an equaling to a University degree. Our measure of validation is based on RPL/ VAE (European Standard). It is a system for accrediting prior experiential learning for an academic qualification, allowing experienced professionals to convert their knowledge and skills into an accredited degree.

We are open to any enquiries and engagement. We wish you all the best in your advancement.

ICCAC International Standards, certification and accreditation help businesses to reduce costs, increase productivity and access new markets. It gives the clients the self confident it needs to assertively venture boldly into their fields. Today its becoming a reality for 3rd party validation are applied by individuals and organizations to strengthen their position as an accomplished individual or a corporate organization.

Our services help businesses of all sizes and sectors to reduce costs, limit their environmental impact, improve quality, access new market opportunities and differentiate themselves from competitors.

An endorsed infrastructure is required for the effective operation of domestic markets and its international recognition is important to facilitate access to foreign markets. It relies on metrology, standardization, accreditation, conformity assessment and market surveillance.

We are here to serve and help you move on to the next level. We can help determine that levels of success you and your organization needs.

Best wishes.

What is Industrial & Commercialization Certification ?

It is a third party, impartial and independent process to assess an individual's competence on their skills, experience, knowledge.

Accreditation provides confidence in certificates and conformity attestations. It underpins the value of professional competence on individual on the job expertise.

In a globalized market environment and the mobility of human resources, it is a requirement to use accredited services for those who did not go to formal academic institutions to acquire their professional skills.

Using accredited services provides market evaluation of a competent human resource. It's objective is to proof that the human resource is compliant to the profession he/ she belongs and meets the relevant specifications and standards as stated in the certification. The Industrial & Commercial Certification Center is an independent international compliance certification body.

The Benefit of Getting a Certification...

a. Certification determines the technical competence, integrity and impartiality of individuals providing conformity assessment services such as level of competence, knowledge, skills and professionalism.

b. Certification is an impartial and objective process that provides the least duplicative, the most transparent and the most widely accepted route for providing trustworthy conformity assessment results.

c. Provides the holder an independent and authoritative attestation of the competence, impartiality and integrity of Conformity Assessment Bodies:

i. Industrial-Commercial Certification & Accreditation Center (ICCAC) is an independent certification body based on the international VAT system and

ii. BRICS-ASEAN Chamber of Commerce (BACC) as the qualified authority on conformity to international standards.. to provide an endorsement or serve as a "passport" for up-skilling, employment, global positioning or value assessment for industrial & commercial partnership.

d. It supports harmonization of conformity assessment procedures at regulated areas, on the national and international level.

f. Certification is therefore an effective credential that require independently verified organizations and assurance of their impartiality and competence.

ICCAC International Standards and Charter

ICCAC has developed a Charter to support the broad principles of legal and ethical business conduct embraced by ICCAC.

1. The ICCAC is a body that provides certification, validation and accreditation to individuals and companies interested in conformity assessment.
2. The services we provide is a voluntary assumption by ICCAC of a standard of conduct that may often be above and beyond the requirements of the law. As we are an independent body.
3. ICCAC being an independent 3rd party body shall use certain tools in tandem with international certification guidelines or shall create its own score card, validation system in certifying its certification process.
4. We promote worldwide acceptance of certificates of conformity and validation and verification statements issued by ICCAC and seek to add value for all stakeholders through what we do and through our services.
5. The acceptance or rejection of ICCAC certification, validation and accreditation by any parties is an independent affair.
6. We bring together, on a worldwide basis, partners with specific domain expertise to be engaged as and when required base on client's request to add on to the validation process.
7. We develop and/or recognize appropriate processes and practices for the conduct of conformity assessment worldwide and ensure their universal application by ICCAC Body.
8. We consult widely with stakeholders in developing our services and we work to deliver the best possible standard of conformity assessment in order to provide our clients with a value-added outcome.
9. We influence value and recognition through networking with other key international organizations and industry groups.
10. Our certification accreditation and validation is an independent assessment "Without Prejudice" and cannot be use as an evidence or being charged in court.

ICCAC Certification is issued Under the International Charter, Convention & Framework of...

BRICS-ASEAN Chamber of Commerce is the trade organization registered under the Registrar of Society (ROS) Malaysia as a Chamber of Commerce. It is part of the International Chamber of Commerce (ICC) network of Chambers of Commerce worldwide. ICC is the governing body of Chambers of Commerce globally to act towards a common conformity guided by charters and by-laws under the ICC framework. This provide the provision for Chamber of Commerce to be an independent certification validation body. (www.bricsasean.org)

Placed at the European Center for the Development of Vocational Training (CEDEFOP) under the Center for European Cooperation, Cedefop aimed at improving vocational education and training (VET) through effective policy-making. Grounded in its 2019 recast Founding Revaluations (Repealing Regulation (EEC) No 337/75 as amended by No 2051/2004) and reflecting the tripartite principle that underpins successful VET for Recognized Prior Learning (RPL). (<https://www.cedefop.europa.eu>)

The International Chamber of Commerce (ICC) Charter provides a framework for Chambers of Commerce to validate, certify and accredit documents, particularly Certificates of Origin (COs) and independent assessment of individual qualification and experience. This framework includes to serve as an accreditation body to certify professions, skilled human resources or intellectual ability, creative work that not limits to Intellectual Property (IPs), literal work, trade secretes and any form of testimony that needs verification and certification. A Chamber of Commerce serves as a verification platform for testifying the authenticate of documents, record, testimony of individuals, professional qualification by academic merit or applied prior learning experience etc. ICC plays a significant role in setting standards by self regulating and providing guidance that can be used for certification and accreditation purposes by others. Specifically, the ICC creates rules and codes that are widely adopted and serve as benchmarks for various industries and practices. (<https://iccwbo.org>)

The International Labor Organization (ILO) actively promotes the recognition of prior learning (RPL) as a means to validate and certify skills acquired through experience, regardless of formal training or location. Recommendation 195 (2004) specifically calls for Member States to establish frameworks for recognizing and certifying skills, including prior learning and experience. This includes skills acquired both formally and informally. (<https://www.ilo.org>)

The United Nations, through UNESCO, promotes the acceptance of prior learning experience for qualifications, particularly in higher education. The Global Convention on the Recognition of Qualifications concerning Higher Education, adopted by UNESCO, emphasizes the importance of recognizing qualifications and prior learning acquired in other countries. This includes qualifications gained through recognized non-traditional learning modes, provided they are subject to comparable quality assurance mechanisms. Standards may be set by independent body of the standards set by ICC. (<https://www.unesco.org>)

While UN bodies don't directly endorse Chambers of Commerce as certification bodies, they do partner with them and recognize their role in international trade and business development. The UN, particularly through organizations like United Nations Industrial Development Organization (UNIDO), works with various bodies to accredit conformity assessment bodies, including those involved in certification. The International Chamber of Commerce (ICC), a prominent business organization, has a close relationship with the UN and is recognized as a key business representative in UN processes.
